

Carers and Disability

AC supports the National Disability Insurance Scheme (NDIS) and will ensure it is properly funded.

Australian Christians upholds the inherent dignity and value of all human life.

People with disabilities are entitled to the same dignity and recognition as all other citizens and deserve special support from all levels of government and our Australian communities.

Australian Christians will therefore work towards creating an Australian community that meaningfully and properly recognizes the differences and needs of all citizens, regardless of their individual and family circumstances.

For too long, the support offered to disabled persons has largely been provided by their families and friends. Government assistance has been woefully inadequate.

Consequently, both carers and those receiving care require urgent and significant support in a number of areas. Carers are the unsung heroes and need to be supported.
